

To whom it may concern:

The decision by Sinclair Broadcasting to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election disturbs me. When Michael Moore promoted his film, Fahrenheit 9/11, with ads featuring President Bush by name, Republicans complained that this was a violation of FCC and Federal Election laws. They were right, and those ads were pulled. The same rules should apply for Sinclair Broadcasting. Airing the anti-Kerry documentary is clearly a political move and an example of using public airwaves for electioneering.

Sincerely,

Philip Schweiger
